County Extension Homemakers is a family and community based volunteer organization serving local needs with national and state expertise in cooperation with the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service. Programs and service projects of Kentucky's 18,000 members continually change to address our demanding lifestyles and community needs. Extension Homemakers is an organization of women and men who care about our communities by offering information and community service including: Women's Crisis Center, Ovarian Cancer Research, Baby Blankets for Premies, Comfort Clowns for Displaced Children, Gang Violence Awareness and Food and Nutrition. For more than 75 years Extension Homemakers have been helping individuals connect to communities through education, service and personal growth. "We're more than you think!"
